BENEFITS OF PRE-BOOKING WITH ROL CRUISE THE TOP PARTNER FOR CUNARD

RECEIVE THE BEST DEAL

Pre-booking for your cruise of choice allows you to book before the sailing goes on general sale. This ensures you benefit from the best deal, which is likely to include a lot more promotional benefits than booking at a later date.

PICK YOUR PREFERRED STATEROOM/SUITE AND DEPARTURE DATE

We know how important it is for you to stay in your preferred stateroom. Pre-booking your cruise enables you to secure your stateroom number before anyone else, avoiding disappointment. Want a suite? It's yours!

BOOK BEFORE FARES INCREASE

Once these incredible voyages go on sale, the prices will increase, so the benefit of securing your preferred stateroom/suite during pre-registration means you'll enjoy the best price available.

TOGETHER, WE'VE PLANTED OVER 18,000 TREES!

This year, we partnered with More Trees, an initiative that fights climate change by supporting global tree planting. Every time you book with ROL Cruise, we'll plant a tree. We are delighted to announce that so far, over 18,000 trees have been planted! That's nearly 30,000 tonnes of future CO<sub>2</sub> captured. If you would like to learn more, please visit our website here: www.rolcruise.co.uk/more-trees.

We look forward to continuing the fight against climate change with you, our valued customer.

RIO DE JANEIRO

Without question, Rio de Janeiro is one of the most beautiful harbour cities in the world. The second largest city in the Federal Republic of Brazil, cascading mountains, sandy beaches, tropical vegetation and the South Atlantic Ocean give Rio de Janeiro a dramatic back-drop in a league of its own. The city is renowned for its spectacular carnival and world-famous sights including Pão de Açúcar (Sugar Loaf Mountain) and Corcovado (Statue of Christ the Redeemer). Whether you're taking a schooner cruise around Guanabara Bay or conquering the city's summits, Rio de Janeiro is guaranteed to amaze and inspire.

BUENOS AIRES

Argentina's capital has a unique and absorbing grandeur. Experience this in abundance at the Colon Theatre, a stunning opera house, and at Recoleta Cemetery, final resting place of Eva 'Evita' Peron. For a true taste of Buenos Aires' life and soul, many love to tour city districts like La Boca, with its colourful houses and lively tango cafés.

a Journey through the Passage

Jane Archer is one of the UK's leading cruise journalists and cruise expert for the Daily Telegraph. She has been sharing her experiences with Blue Horizons' readers for the past 18 years.

Picture it, if you will. Me, a hot tub and a big iceberg in the distance. Add in HX's expedition ship, Roald Amundsen, polar bears and lots of history about polar exploration and you'll have a good idea of where I have just been.

Last year I wrote in Blue Horizons that the Northwest Passage was up there on my hit-list. Well, I'm thrilled to say I've done it, cruising from Nome in Alaska to Greenland, then heading south to Halifax in Canada.

What an adventure! We were going to do in less than two weeks (the time it took to actually transit the Passage) what it took Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen, our ship's namesake and the first man to transit the passage, three years to do. And along the way we were going to spot wildlife, explore remote islands and get a cultural fix visiting Inuit settlements. Or at least that was the plan.

"We have a plan A but ice and weather will decide where we go so we also have B, C and D so you need to be flexible, as you have seen," expedition leader Torstein warned us.

Alaska is six times bigger than the UK so the first job for us expeditioners was to transit the Barents Strait, the narrow channel separating the US and Russia, and sail the Beaufort Sea across top of Alaska into Arctic Canada – a journey that took four sea days.

Images credit: Oscar Farrera, HX Expeditions

That gave the expedition team who run the show on board – a 22-strong band of historians, photographers, marine scientists, glaciologists, geologists, ornithologists and various other 'ists - to host lectures and citizen science projects. They gave us samples of sea water to analyse under microscopes for phytoplankton, taught us how to identify clouds and were on wildlife watch on the forward deck most mornings.

We also learnt about the explorers of old who went looking for the Northwest Passage in the early 19th century. Sir John Franklin's 1845 expedition was the most famous, mainly because he, his crew and their two ships, Erebus and Terror, vanished.

A landing on Beechey Island, where the expedition overwintered in 1845-46 and the bodies of three crew members were discovered in 1850 was always going to be a highlight. The temperature was close to zero and the wind was whipping around the bay as we went ashore in the inflatable Zodiacs and walked around the snowy terrain, spying the graves and message cairns as our expedition team kept a wary eye out for polar bears.

Ah yes, polar bears. They look cuddly but are not. Among the many talks is the what-to-do-if-we-see-a-polar-bear one. 'Keep calm' didn't seem a given. 'Don't wander off alone' made more sense. Which is why on Herschel Island, our first landing, it occurred to me that hiking up to a viewpoint on my own was not a good idea. Actually it was, as I was rewarded with a sighting of caribou grazing in the distance.

There's nowhere in the Northwest Passage for ships to dock, so all landings are made by Zodiac, invariably stepping into icy water. Waterproof trousers need to be top of the packing list, along with clothes that can be used to layer up - by the time we reached the icy parts of the passage, I had six layers on top and three on my legs – plus gloves, woolly hats and scarves. HX provides boots and waterproof jackets (the latter is yours to keep). As life on board is very casual, you can leave the sparkles at home.

There was great excitement the next day as we met sister ship Fridjof Nansen (you'll find details of Nansen's cruise through the Passage from Nuuk to Nome next year, with charter flights in and out of Reykjavik and Seattle, overleaf in this issue of Blue Horizons) and later that evening saw the Smoking Hills.

“...a call came through of a polar bear spotted on the ice.”

Some time that day we also entered the Northwest Passage. Like me, many expected a narrow channel to mark the start. In fact, we were in a vast sea with no sign of land while sailing until we were halfway through the passage. When we did spy land or go ashore, there was not a tree in sight but a surprising amount of flora surviving despite the icy conditions.

"We couldn't land at Herschel or see the Smoking Hills last year," Torstein told me later. So far so good. Hopefully our luck would last. It did. We went ashore at Holman Island (Ulukhaktok), Murray Island, Cambridge Bay, Borge Island and Gjøa Haven, where Amundsen spent two winters during his transit.

One morning I woke at 3.30am to see dawn breaking (it's not midnight sun in August/September but not far off); next day at 4am I was watching birds teeming around the cliffs of Prince Leopold Island when a call came through of a polar bear spotted on the ice. That was my cue to wrap up and go onto my balcony – one of many perks of having a suite.

I also had access to Lindstrøm, a suite-only restaurant where the food was tasty and the service personal (after day one, Erik and Norwin brought my tea and fruit plate every morning without me having to say a word!), free laundry and a complimentary minibar set-up of beers, wine and soft drinks on arrival.

Non-suite passengers could eat in Aune or Fredheim, which was open from noon to 8pm and served burgers, wraps and BeaverTail (a dessert apparently, much to the surprise of the guy who ordered a side of chips to go with it). Non-suite passengers can dine in Lindstrøm for €35<sup>pp</sup>.

More polar bears sightings followed as we sailed through the narrow Bellot Strait and there was another bear at Croker Bay glacier, our last stop before exiting the passage. Total tally: At least 11.

As we headed south, the days got warmer. There was another stop in Greenland, this time in colourful Sisimiut, calls into Red Bay and Corner Brook in Canada, where stories of whaling and hikes through the woods awaited, and three more sea days. Along the way we were joined by playful dolphins splashing about and an expedition quiz found out who had been paying attention. Not me apparently. I blame the science questions!

WHAT MAKES THIS A HURTIGRUTEN SIGNATURE VOYAGE?

"I was lucky enough to recently board MS Trollfjord on a Hurtigruten Signature Voyage. These handcrafted voyages visit the best places along the Norwegian for a truly immersive experience. What's more, you can enjoy all-inclusive food and drink, as well as longer time in ports.

Onboard, we got to enjoy Norway's Coastal Kitchen cuisine across three exceptional restaurants, with Røst the arctic fine dining restaurant being my personal favourite.

The Signature Experience offers an enhanced onboard activities programme with an in-depth lecture series, which felt personal with the onboard knowledgeable Norwegian crew."
